

HOTEL ZOO BERLIN

Built in 1891 as a private residence, the building became a hotel for high society at the beginning of the 20th century. In the 1950s, it became the VIP hotel of the Berlin Film Festival and was home to many celebrities. The current design & interior bears the signature of U.S. and Emmy-nominated designer Dayna Lee. Lee's vision revolves around a fictional family - the former residents of the house - whose story is told to the present day. Meanwhile, HOTEL ZOO BERLIN sees itself as a luxurious retreat for individualists.

GRACE Bar and GRACE Restaurant are among the city's hotspots and synonymous with casual fine dining as well as fancy cocktails and signature drinks. The ROOFTOOP terrace can accommodate up to 100 people, it is a green oasis in the summer and offers the best views over the vibrant capital.

Like the hotel itself, guests continue to make unique statements. The international clientele includes artists and cultural figures, music & fashion stars, successful fashion and lifestyle influencers, inclusive of local freethinkers.

OVERVIEW

The architectural mix of heritage and contemporary in all 127 rooms and 14 suites are unique, this continues through the furnishings and room layout. The original division in the building dates over 100 years of history in conjunction with the recent addition of new floors by SIDE WINGS and the rear building creates unique architectural features. This is also reflected in the different room layouts, giving each room its own uniqueness.

Some rooms have the bathrooms integrated into the bedroom space, while others feature freestanding bathtubs, whilst other rooms have semicircular walls that hide the former staircase. The panorama rooms offer views OVER the famous KURFÜRSTENDAMM, others OVER the Berlin rooftops of the „Theater des Westens“.

MEETINGS & EVENTS

200 square meters of meeting and event space with floor-to-ceiling windows featuring unobstructed views of the Neue Kranzler Eck. The conference rooms can be divided through partition walls while offering the latest technological equipment.

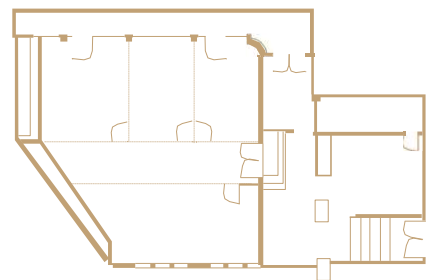

A separate reception area can be used for a variety of purposes: events, receptions, coffee breaks etc. These also provide access to balconies. Lunch can take place in the GRACE restaurant.
